As part of a £110m regeneration scheme of Haggerston Estate in the central London borough of Hackney, this ground floor retail strip necessitated a security measure that would not detract from the scheme of the building.

The project required a security system that wouldn't compromise the aesthetic finish of the residential and commercial project, as well as specifying minimum SR2 certification to LPS 1175 Issu 7. Approached by contractors Taylor Wimpey Charter Global supplied and installed 17 Integr8 Non Structural SR2 Shutters. In addition, Charter Global provided the complete shop front system, featuring Integr8 Aluminium Louvres finished in the same RAL colour.

As a new development, it was vital that the security measures did not detract from the nature of the building design. Consisting of 700 new homes, both private dwellings and council properties, along with a community centre and retail space, the security measure provided by Charter Global were installed on the retail and commercial units. Charter Global worked closely with the architect during the design process to ensure the specialist Integr8 lintel shutter system was feasible.

Installed early on during the works, the lintel removes the need for an unsightly headbox. This combined with the bespoke shop front design catering for the shutter guides ensures a neat, flush finish. The louvre panels above each opening allowed for continuous ventilation whereas the reinforced glazing provided by Charter Global ensured protection for when the shutters were hidden.

Whilst maintaining the refreshing design of the new building, there has been no compromise on the standard of security.

The Integr8 Non Structural SR2 Shutter is independently tested and certified to LPS 1175 Issue 7 Security Rating 2. Having undergone rigorous testing and is manufactured to strict regulations, this measure has been designed to be completely concealed from view when raised.
